

Scaling Luxury Real Estate Marketing

Coldwell Banker Global Luxury

ROLE	DURATION	FOCUS
In-House Content Strategist	2+ Years	Content Strategy & Copywriting

The Situation

During the pandemic, Miami real estate was turned upside down. Homes were moving faster than ever, and marketing had to keep pace. Digital became the anchor of every campaign and every closing. Realtors had to stand out online, build a lifestyle through content, and earn a client's trust through a screen.

The Approach

The hybrid system preserved the trust and history of the Coldwell Banker name while layering in the personality of each realtor and property.

Writing property descriptions for the MLS was more than relaying information — it meant researching what buyers were seeking in that moment and delivering it through vivid imagery and the right keywords, in just a few lines.

Each communication strategy was tailored not just to the realtor's personal brand, but to the buyers and renters themselves. More modest homes spoke to practical needs, while ultra-luxury listings sold the aspirational lifestyle buyers craved.

The Results

50+	$775M+	$1M+
AGENTS SUPPORTED	DRIVEN ANNUALLY	LISTING TIER

The shift showed up in higher conversion rates and in shares, not just likes — a sign the content was compelling enough for people to pass along, not just glance at. Realtors were pleased with how things turned out, and several noticed real growth in engagement on their MLS listings following the changes.

Why It Worked

Realtors sold homes, dreams, and lifestyles — not just property. These strategies helped bridge that connection through online marketing and communications. The best-performing content was rooted in authenticity, pairing the luxury lifestyle with trustworthy execution.
